Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurNishan Amato was trying to trace his Italian grandfather and was a long way from home. Marta Fabrini was struggling to overcome post-traumatic grief after the murder of her husband and son by living in her husband's place of birth. The two strangers were from opposite ends of the social spectrum but when destiny brought them together on the small Aegean island of Symi, the impact strained relationships, shattered lives, split families and placed them both in jeopardy. Only personal sacrifice by Marta and a belief in a better life by Nishan could help them both reach their goals.An action packed novel set in a stunning Mediterranean island and on the high seas. A must read for all those who enjoy a gripping storyline with a nautical flavour spiced with love, lust, revenge, conflict and danger.Prsentation de l'diteurNishan Amato was trying to trace his Italian grandfather and was a long way from home. Biographie de l'auteur Su Garca was born in Nottingham, England in 1948 and spent her early years dreaming of a career in the theatre, following in the footsteps of her late grandfather, Harry Cassidy, whose contemporaries in Variety included such famous names as Stan Laurel, Charlie Chaplin and Vesta Tilley. One of the author's first professional childhood appearances was as young Estelle in the Nottingham Playhouse production of Charles Dickens, GREAT EXPECTATIONS, under the direction of John Neville and starring a young Donald Sutherland as Abel Magwitch. Leaving school at sixteen, she joined the Sadlers Wells Opera Company in London and toured the UK appearing in such operas as Tosca, La Traviata and The Bartered Bride before leaving the stage for a career in aviation. Her passion for sailing became a lifestyle when, in her fifties, she retired and became a live-aboard sailor covering over 50,000 nautical miles and crossing the Atlantic Ocean four times with her husband, David, on their private yacht. During the long hours at sea Su wrote professional articles for the sailing press and regular blogs for family and friends back home, then, with a backlog of personal experiences to draw on, she turned her hand to writing fiction. DEAD RECKONING is her first novel and has received many plaudits from male and female readers across the world. Her second novel, RUM PUNCH was published in December 2015. Su continues to sail the Mediterranean from her summer home in Menorca and uses her wealth of experiences to weave intricate plots for her many and varied characters.
